I Measuring bio-energy balance

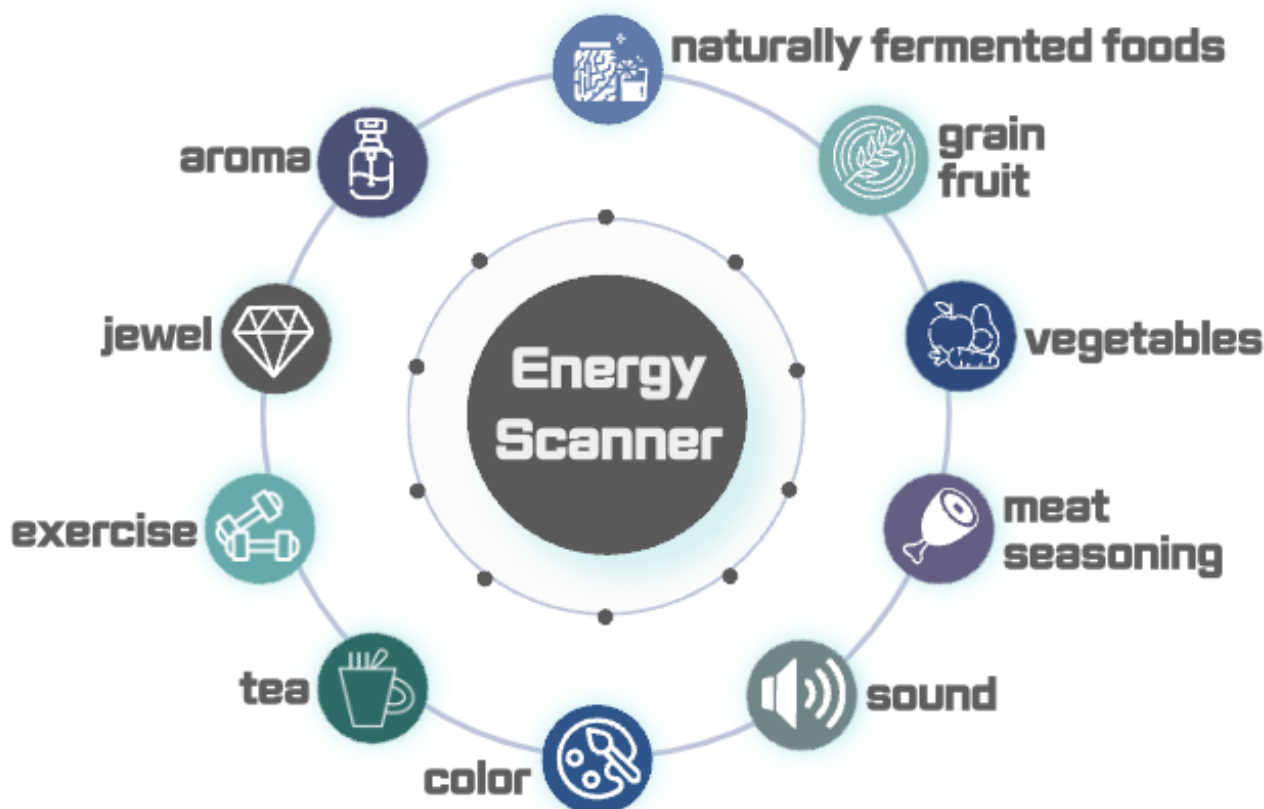

Every second, thousands of physiological, biochemical, and electronic processes occur within the body. Each heartbeat, each breath, each emotion creates a characteristic electromagnetic field that travels through the body to distant cells and tissues. The result is a coordination, integration, and interconnection of processes.

- Energy Medicine-James L. Oschman, PhD

Energy scanners can help you see at a glance whether the interconnections between cells are smooth or not.

I Customized solutions to help you live a well-being life
